INTRO- DUCTION

The European Graduate School EGS is a private Institution and a European Union accredited Institution of Higher Education by the National Commission for Further and Higher Education, Malta. EGS is governed by the non-profit foundation EGSF, co-founded by the state of Wallis and the EGIS Foundation in Zurich.

Founded in 1994, EGS provides degree programs and continuing education for practicing professionals on a graduate and post-graduate level. Entrance requirements include a Bachelor's degree or an equivalency that must be approved by a qualifying board. EGS offers an access procedure in which students who have not yet achieved the Bachelor's degree may qualify for matriculation to the EGS. Entrance to the doctoral program requires a Master's degree.

EGS acknowledges credits from Cooperating Universities, Colleges and Partner Institutes under the terms of the Bologna Educational Treaty. Curriculum compatibility and quality control is secured through the academic advisory board and follows the standards for International Universities.

The EGS offers programs in the following fields of research and education:

Aristotle speaks of three kinds of knowing: Theoria (knowing by observing), Praxis (knowing by doing), Poiesis (knowing by making). Our programs seek to restore confidence in Poiesis, the knowing that comes from the human capacity to shape both self and world. Training and research at EGS are based on that capacity and encourage students to take responsibility for shaping their development as learners.

Modern life demands new ways for studies and research.

EGS is a non-profit organization that fulfills its requirements without state subsidies. EGS works in an interdisciplinary and transdisciplinary way and supports the networking with other Universities and Institutes with the aim of gaining synergy through joint instructional and research activities. EGS is committed to fundamental research in the Health Sector, Psychotherapy, Supervision, Coaching, Education, Conflict-Transformation and Peacebuilding, and is active in research concerning effectiveness and long-term consequences in the use of the arts in helping relationships. EGS sets high ethical standards and works with scientific models, artistic media, experiential learning and other established methods of education.

Being with the Arts is our way of being in the world.

EGS is closely connected to the phenomenological human sciences and to an anthropological view of the human being as shaping the world in which he or she lives. We are committed to the spirit of the Liberal Arts and consider Art, Philosophy and Science as essentially related to each other. The various facets of human existence are connected in the creative act. At EGS, we conceive of the human being as part of a broader totality who, in his/her "being in the world," carries not only an individual and social responsibility, but also an ecological one. We at EGS view the human being as a being with language who, in opening to the "here and now" through the artistic act, through play and philosophical thinking, finds the possibility to constructively shape life in all its multiplicity.

This approach focuses on the resources of clients and on their ability to find solutions to their problems by engaging in the arts and reflecting on both their experience and on the works that have emerged. The courses require no prior artistic experience and are open to all those who are seeking a more creative path to change.

Faculty will include leaders in the field like for example Expressive Arts pioneer Margo Fuchs Knill, Dean of the Division Arts, Health and Society and the Program Director of the CAGS/Ph.D. program José Miguel Calderon, many of whom teach in the programs at EGS.

ONLINE EVENT

NEW APPROCHES TO ACADEMIC WRITING & RESEARCH IN EXPRESSIVE ARTS

In writing and research in the field of Expressive Arts we often face challenges to articulate subjective aesthetic experiences and to communicate and transform them into adequate language and accessible knowledge. The multiple art disciplines demand qualities here that most traditional writing and research methods cannot capture. With this Colloquium we offer and provide a supportive environment for your academic writing and research development in the field and for the exploration and application of new tools.

The colloquium will allow participants to gain confidence in writing both creatively and academically. Participants will also explore in greater depth the vision of the Arts-Based Research that we are developing at EGS, and then to apply it to their own writing project.

This course is a requirement for Ph.D. candidates. It is recommended for MA students and BA waiver candidates. It is highly recommended for anybody interested in writing.

FACULTY

The format of a Graduate School for Professionals with training in Intensive Summer Seminars has the advantage that it can commit a Faculty of excellent reputation who are internationally engaged leaders or founders in their field.

Faculty members come from transdisciplinary practices that cross institutional boundaries. They advocate investigative learning and creative inquiry that embrace the stratified complexity of the concrete challenges we face today. They are familiar with thinking that expands the horizon of established frameworks and creates networks between disciplines and institutions in both the private and public sector. Faculty that have joined EGS are enthusiastic about projects that engage the typical adult learner. They appreciate the benefit of the innovative learning that goes on between Faculty, Students and Participants in continuing projects. Not all Faculty on this list will be teaching each summer.
